Location: Boundary Bay Airport

Boundary Bay Airport (CZBB) is a premier general aviation and executive airport located in Delta, British Columbia, offering a compelling alternative to the Vancouver International Airport (YVR) South Terminal for aviation users seeking operational efficiency, predictable access, and lower total operating costs. With uncongested runways, full-service FBO integration and direct access to the Metro Vancouver market, CZBB allows operators to maintain schedule reliability and cost control without sacrificing proximity to YVR or cross border connectivity.

Featuring two asphalt runways, including a recently extended 6,008 foot primary runway capable of accommodating a broad range of corporate and private aircraft, CZBB offers on-site Jet A 1 and Avgas fueling, aircraft maintenance, hangarage and tie down services, as well as full FBO support including pilot lounges, flight planning resources, and customs clearance.

Owned by the City of Delta and operated under a long-term lease by Alpha Aviation Inc., CZBB provides an aviation focused operating environment tailored to corporate, business, and private aviation users who value efficiency, flexibility, and reduced congestion while remaining closely connected to a major urban centre and international border access.

Zoning

The property is situated within the I8: Airport Terminal Industrial Zone which allows for a variety of aviation-related uses including but not limited to aircraft storage, sales, rental, service and maintenance, manufacture, assembly and service of aeronautical components and related equipment, airport terminal use, and scientific, electronic and technological research.
